

CAMPUS GUARDIAN
corporation

Campus Guardian Corporation

was founded with a mission to provide a new generation of security products and services based on the company's U.S. patents and advanced software technology.

The founders, Michael Glier and Mark Laird, have assembled an experienced team of senior executives, engineers and operations specialists. Together, the Campus Guardian team has applied their extensive experience in law enforcement, security and communications systems to create and deploy the first product in a family of security services that deliver increased safety and security to college and university communities.

Campus Guardian Emergency Notification

"When minutes matter..."SM

Campus Guardian Emergency Notification converts a BlackBerry® smartphone into a personal emergency response device that can be used throughout a university community. Within seconds of pressing a button or calling 911, campus security is notified with an alarm showing the location of the caller and available security officers on an enhanced campus map. GPS location and caller trajectory information help them find the caller quickly.

- The caller and responding officers are located throughout the event to help expedite and manage the response, even if the caller is moving.
- A suite of reporting tools provides the school with the ability to evaluate event handling to continuously improve operating procedures.
- A high-availability architecture, enterprise database and leading GIS software provide a complete end-to-end personal security solution.
